Update 5 – Working remotely re Coronavirus (CoVID – 19)

This is a specific update in relation to additional measures we are introducing to reduce exposure and potential transmission of CoVID-19 across Newcrest.

Following careful consideration by our senior executives and the site leadership team, it has been decided that where possible and appropriate, to maintain business continuity, identified roles will be asked to work remotely by their relevant Manager.

This will take immediate effect at Red Chris where the site leadership team have identified roles where a physical presence in the workplace is not required. Impacted roles will commence working remotely as advised and return to site dates will be provided as we learn more.

For your information this activity is also occurring across Newcrest operational sites as well as our Melbourne, Perth and Port Moresby offices. There are small number of exceptions where people are required to have ongoing access to offices as agreed by management.

This decision is consistent with global government efforts to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

As always please talk to your leader if you have any questions or concerns, however, please remember all measures taken are to prevent and / or minimise the risk of CoVID-19 transmission

We appreciate your support and understanding as we introduce new measure and urge you all to stay safe and look out for each other.
