SIGNIFICANT UPDATES FROM THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA

- Today, the Government of Canada announced that additional Canadian airports will begin accepting international flights.<sup>7</sup> Details include the following:
  - “Canada’s phased approach to easing border measures is informed by the available data and scientific evidence, including the vaccination rate of Canadians, and the improving epidemiological situation.”
  - “The strict vaccine travel requirements that will be fully phased in by November 30, and the pan-Canadian proof of vaccination credential now available for travel, are creating opportunities for safe travel for vaccinated Canadians.”
  - “Effective on November 30, 2021, international flights carrying passengers will be permitted to land at the following additional Canadian airports:
    - St. John’s International
    - John C. Munro Hamilton International
    - Region of Waterloo International
    - Regina International
    - Saskatoon John G. Diefenbaker International
    - Kelowna International
    - Abbotsford International
    - Victoria International.”
  - “Consideration will be given to adding additional airports as conditions dictate, based on demand, operational capacity, the epidemiological situation in Canada, and recommendations from the Public Health Agency of Canada.”
  - “The 10 Canadian airports currently accepting international flights are: Halifax Stanfield International, Québec City Jean Lesage International, Montréal-Trudeau International, Ottawa/Macdonald–Cartier International, Toronto Pearson International, Billy Bishop Toronto City Centre, Winnipeg James Armstrong Richardson International, Edmonton International, Calgary International, and Vancouver International.”
